Confirmation of Hughes Goes Into Doubtful Stages

Senate Resumes Fourth Day of Debate On His Nomination.

BIG BUSINESS BLAMED

Decision Depends Upon Final Attitude of Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as the next Chief Justice of the United States by the senate, went into doubtful stages as friends conceded "big inroads" by opposition over night.

Senator Watson, Indiana, a republican leader, predicted as many as 17 votes for his nomination as the fourth day of debate was resumed, senators Glass, democrat, Virginia, and Nye, republican, South Dakota, carrying on the attack against Hughes. Others were busy checking the situation and trying to agree on the outcome of the decision which depends on the final attitude of the democrats. It was conceded a vote would not be reached today, that the democrats having voted against Hughes, wished to make speeches.

Senators Norris and Borah, of Idaho, opened the attack on Hughes on the ground of his economic views for big business instead of the rights of the people.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Testimony that Charles Evans Hughes whose confirmation as the next Chief Justice of the United States is before the senate, drew up proposed contracts when Muscle Shoals was turned over to the American Cyanamid company, was presented today before the senate lobby committee.

W. S. Waldo, engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement association, took the stand today and possessed a memorandum written by him which was the basis of the committee that Hughes drew up the contract.

Farmers Have Meet At Sardis

Many Attend and Discuss Agricultural Outlook for 1930.

Cotton varieties, cotton fertilizers and cooperative purchasing of Arkansas Rowden (Rowden 40) cotton seed was discussed in a farmers meeting at Sardis church, on the Ozan and Nashville road, last evening. Thirty farmers attended the meeting, and Joe Reed was appointed as a committee of one to attend the agricultural outlook conference which will be held at city hall in Hope next Wednesday. Joe expects to bring with him several representatives from the Cardinals community.

While an act of Congress prohibits the government from forecasting prices on cotton the facts regarding the cotton situation will be presented, and these will be of interest to bankers, farmers and others.

In an effort to standardize on a variety of cotton which will meet the greatest market demand for cotton E. A. Harris, Ozan Route 1 was appointed as the local representative by the cooperative purchase of Arkansas Rowden pedigree and tested seed. The price which will be collected is $2 per bushel with the understanding that if the seed are purchased for less money the balance will be refunded. Those in the Sardis, Goodlett or other adjoining community who desire seed are requested to see Mr. Harris at once.

A similar arrangement has been made in the Hinton community and Charlie Middlebrooks is the local representative to receive orders.

The next meeting at Sardis will be held Wednesday evening Feb. 19 beginning at 7 p. m. Truck crops will be discussed and everyone is invited, according to County Agent, Lynn Smith.

Advancement In Activities Made

Home Demonstration and Agriculture Units Show Progress.

LEWISVILLE, Feb. 13.—Plans for the further advancement of home demonstration and agricultural prospects in Lafayette county were discussed by county agriculturists here. Suggestions were made by those representing the extension service of the University of Arkansas that more emphasis be placed on the better homes project, a national movement for home improvement, in which approximately 5000 communities took part in 1929.

Resolutions favoring the measure as a county-wide project were passed, and the date for the Better Homes school was set for April 27 to 31.

McKamie was chosen for the center of the state community landscape contest. One rural community from each county will be allowed to enter the state finals. Scoring will be based upon conditions of roads, homes, fences and churches.

Miss Elizabeth French was chosen to represent Lewisville in the state garden contest.

Representatives to the meeting reported that five communities in the county already had begun preparations for community fairs to be staged next fall.

Extension officials present at the meeting were: Miss Ella Posey, district home demonstration agent; O. L. Henderson, Lafayette county farm agent, and Miss Geneva Castleberry, county home demonstration agent.

As a result of the conflagration all train service was tied up between McGeece and Helena.

Officials of the railroad expressed belief that it would take at least four days to repair the damaged trestle.

Man Loses $10,500 In "Money Machine"

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Maybe when roses grow on lilac bushes, the famous old swindle called the "money making" machine will no longer find a victim; but one cannot be sure, even then.

Joseph Sikorski's $10,500 went the way of a lot of other fellow's savings yesterday. A man named Rofski had a machine which he said would double Sikorski's $10,500. Just after starting the "money making" machine, Rofski discovered the contraption was running low on magic acid, and he hurried away to get more. He may have gone to China, for he didn't come back, and neither did Sikorski's $10,500.

Hospital Attendants Believe Youth Has Chance To Recover.

J. B. Collums, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Collums of Emmet, in the Josephine hospital suffering for severe burns received early Monday morning when he was playing in the bed room. The exact causes of the burns is yet undetermined, but it is believed the youngster was playing with a piece of paper when it ignited from a stove.

The mother was in the kitchen preparing breakfast when she heard screams from the bedroom, rushing in she found the little fellow's arms and head burned severely. Physicians were called and medical aid was rendered. It was later decided to bring young Collums to a hospital here, where he is in a serious condition, although it is believed he will recover.

Expenditures For 1930 Total $10,000,000,000

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Security offerings in 1930 will exceed those of 1929 if all projected governmental and industrial expenditures are carried out.

Total construction work indicated for 1930, as already announced by municipalities, industries and the federal government is estimated at $10,000,000,000.

Offerings of new securities in 1929 fell short of this figure by approximately $100,000,000 based on authoritative banking statistics.

Prospective security flotations for 1930 will be further augmented if forecasts of greater foreign offerings materialize. Foreign bond issues in 1929 were less than ten per cent of the total new securities.

Assailant May Get the Death Penalty

May Be Indicted for Attack Upon Public Official.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Daniel Flores, who shot and wounded President Ortiz Rubio shortly after his inauguration February 5, is liable to the death sentence and may be executed for his crime.

Secretary of the Interior Portes Gil, under whose direction as provisional president the new penal code abolishing the death sentence for common crime was drawn up, made this clear in a statement to the press.

"The code differentiates between political and ordinary crimes, he pointed out; and death may be inflicted as punishment for an attempt on a public official's life."

Flores has been held in the military prison here since the day of the shooting subject to constant interrogation, in which both military and civil authorities have participated.

Texas Closes Law On Game Haunts

Large Areas Forbid Hunting for A Period of Ten Years.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 13.—If Connecticut should forbid all hunting for 10 years, it would do no more for game preservation than Texas has done. Hunting is absolutely forbidden for 10 years on game sanctuaries in Texas with more area than all of Connecticut and four times as big as Rhode Island.

There are 68 of these sanctuaries with a total of 3,203,122 acres where wild life is held sacred. The largest is a 414,314 acre tract in eight counties were hunting is forbidden until Nov. 1, 1935. The earliest sanctuaries were established in 1925. The latest was a 6,000 acre tract in Calhoun county owned by W. L. Moody of Galveston. It became a sanctuary on February 27, 1929 and will be closed until 1939.

These sanctuaries are not the earliest efforts of Texas to preserve the herds of game for which the state once was famous. A review of the conservation steps, just issued by the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission shows that Texas had its first game law in 1860. That law prohibited killing quail on Galveston Island for two years.

Beside the game sanctuaries, practically every form of nonpredatory wild life now is protected by closed seasons. Under them a steady growth of wild life population is detailed in the department manual.

SLAYERS FLEE IN CAR

Had Reputation As A Gambler and Criminal of Long Record.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A woman identified as a dance hall hostess and her escort were killed today by four gunmen who alighted from an automobile and chased them when they ran in an opposite direction and shot them down. The killers escaped in an automobile.

Several hours after the shooting took place, the body of a woman was found and identified as that of May Smith, 24, who came to New York from Wilks Barre, Pa., and had been employed as a dance hall hostess here.

Her escort, Carmine Barelli, 30, according to police, had a reputation of his own as a gambler and had a criminal record against him dating back to 1919.

Hawaiians Planting More Acres in Coffee

HONOLULU, T. H. Feb. 13.—The coffee industry of Hawaii, centering in the Kona district of the Big Island has approximately doubled during the past six years, heartening advocates of extending coffee raising under the American flag in insular territories and possessions.

The crop for the past season amounted to 8,667,460 bags, which is hardly a factor in the world coffee market, but which was made the basis of the contention for a duty on coffee sought during the past year in Washington.

Because of the comparative smallness of the crop, Hawaiian coffee markets bordering the Pacific coast. Growers are ambitious for expansion, however, confident in the quality of their product. There are now approximately 1,200 planters in Kona, almost all on small holdings of a few acres.

Kiwanis Have Regular Meeting

George Brannon, Former Citizen of Hope, Guest at Luncheon.

Geo. Brannon, former citizen of Hope, and described as "the man who brought the cotton mill to Malvern," was a guest of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly noonday meeting at the Barlow hotel Thursday. Mr. Brannon lived in Hope for a number of years, until 1921. He is in the life insurance business, but is now engaged in helping to start a work clothing factory in Little Rock.

Ben Eastin, of Stamps, was also a guest of the club. He is editor of a new magazine which will set forth the commercial, agricultural and industrial advantages of the 22 counties which comprise the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce. Copies of the first issue were exhibited, which contained several stories of Hope progress. The subscription list of this new magazine already includes a large number of people in the largest centers who may be interested in the industrial development of South Arkansas. The club gave their wholehearted endorsement to this magazine, and the work of Ben Eastin.

The club was delightfully entertained with two dances by little Miss Mary Della Holloway, and also little Miss Mary Ann Lile. They are both pupils of Miss Pauline Harris. Mrs. R. T. White accompanied at the piano. Joe Floyd has charge of the program next week.

The inspection was conducted by Major Hatfield, senior instructor of the Arkansas National Guard, and Major Newton of Little Rock and former citizen of Hope. According to a statement made by Mr. Newton, the local unit is in better shape at present than at any time since its organization ten years ago.

Other inspections will be made in various cities of Arkansas, and a rating will be given to all units.

Chicago Traffic Lights Expensive

$2,000,000 Is Lost Annually Through Traffic Congestion.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Stop-and-go lights are "stopping" Chicago's traffic congestion in the loop, but they are "going" strong on the expenses over the country at large. Most of the $2,000,000 annual loss to the country through traffic congestion is due principally to the stop-and-go light. According to Leslie Sorensen, city traffic engineer, and Robert H. Nau of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who claim that the lights expedite traffic about 25 per cent here.

The no-parking ban has also been an aid in speeding up movement in the loop. The biggest difficulty is the control of pedestrian traffic and the jamming caused by "U" turns in the middle of blocks.

The estimate of $2,000,000,000 was taken from a report made to the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. In the report there was a statement by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont to the effect that the loss "may equal our annual expenditures for the construction and maintenance of traffic facilities."

A study of the conditions in Hartford, Conn., made by engineers of Yale university, showed that traffic signals cost motorists $18,000 a day. In New York City the estimate is nearly $1,000,000 a day.

Congress Asked To Save Old Custer Inscription

PIERRE, S. D. Feb. 13.—(AP)—To preserve an old inscription cut in a rock on Mt. Noyan Kara in Wyoming by Gen. George A. Custer, representatives and senators from a half dozen middle western states are being asked to secure funds from the federal government.

Group of Women Present Views On National Prohibition Law

Second Day Hearing On Measures Asking Repeal of Amendment

YOUTH BEING KILLED

Obtain Liquor From Road Hands and Speakeasies; Uncontrolled

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A group of outspoken women demanded of congress that prohibition be placed before the voters of the nation to see whether America should continue dry. It was the second day session of the hearing by the committee on measures asking for the repeal of the 18th amendment.

The first witness today was Mrs. Mary T. Norton, democrat, representative from New Jersey, who said "the American people should be given an opportunity to express themselves on the prohibition question through the ballot" box.

Mrs. Charles Babitt, New York, and chairman of the women's organization against prohibition, followed and said "they thought they would make prohibition as strong as the constitution, but instead they made the constitution weaker by prohibition."

Mrs. David Holmes was the next to take the stand and said "we demand the outright repeal of the 18th amendment, free from modification, compromise or substitute, and that it was up to congress to work out a strong prohibition law."

Miss Louise Gross, of New York, chairman of a women's league said "the National prohibition law has failed in purpose. The young people are drinking heavily, obtaining their liquor from road houses and speakeasies, and that bootleggers could not be regulated. The youth of the United States is being destroyed because of the prohibition law (not being strong enough)."

William C. Bruce, of Maryland, former senator and a critic of prohibition enforcement, also spoke against the prohibition law.

Farmer's Peculiar Death Laid To Suicide

PRESCOTT, Feb. 13.—The death of Clifton Harris, aged 46, a farmer who lived 10 miles north of here, is believed to have been suicide and the contents of his stomach were sent to the state chemist Tuesday for examination. Harris drank a liquid supposed to have been medicine and it proved fatal. His wife said she tried to prevent his taking the medicine.

After he returned to his work on a levee, Monday afternoon, he remarked that he had taken some medicine by mistake. He leaves his widow and three small children.

Farmers Plant More Radishes

700 Acres Are Being Planted According To Report.

Farmers in the vicinity of Hope are planting about 700 acres in radishes, according to a canvass of local seed dealers and produce buyers. Planting is nearly completed for this season, although several growers do not expect to finish their seeding until the early part of next week. Last year not more than 450 acres were planted in this crop, according to the same estimates. This big gain is said to be due to the splendid price farmers received for this crop last year.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—Advised to prosecute her spouse, 20 years of age, a bride of 19 years walked from Superior Court here recently with the light of battle in her eyes.

The advice was given to Mrs. Jane A. Farnand who petitioned the court to grant her an annulment of marriage because her husband, Merle Joseph, had suddenly announced it was all of because he was only 20 years old and didn't love her anyway.

She contemplates charging him with perjury and may press charges so that he will face a jail sentence.

The Right To Be A Trader

A PEDDLER selling socks was incensed the other day because we turned him away from our door. He had no business calling on a newspaper, however, and we questioned whether he had any legitimate business in Hope.

This gentleman, traveling through from another section, had his nerve to approach an institution which draws two-thirds of its support from the merchants of the city. And if we were a merchant ourselves we would seriously challenge his right to sell to local people without in some way qualifying himself.

The mercantile establishments of every city, through their stocks and the personal holdings of their owners, contribute very largely to the work of carrying on local government and the local public schools. As the stores depend upon attracting the purchases of local people in order to re-distribute this money back to the community again in the shape of taxes, the question arises, who has the right to be a trader?

Don't imagine for a moment that local trade in any era of history has been free and unrestrained. The right to be a trader is only a little lower than the rights of kings. It had to be so, because on trade depends all the social and economic values of every community, whether it be the little city or the largest metropolis.

Merchants who pay local taxes, who sustain local community enterprises, and who are citizens of the home town, deserve an iron-clad protection against itinerant traders who pay nothing to, and leave nothing in, the community which gives them its life-blood.

The peddler should pay for the privilege of doing business.

It is a privilege, as every business man knows after figuring up his taxes for 1929. Then why not be fair to our own business men and demand that the peddler pay for exercising a privilege which isn't free even to the home man?

Facts Are Needed

CONGRESS did the right thing in voting the $50,000 President Hoover requested for a survey of conditions in Haiti. The next step is up to the investigators. It is to be hoped that they will do a thorough, impartial and speedy job.

There has been agitation about our course in Haiti for many years, and the average man can be excused if he is pretty badly mixed up about it. On the one hand it has been charged that we have mistreated the Haitians shamefully; on the other hand it has been said just as positively that we have done wonders for them.

This investigation should clear the air. A careful examination of all the facts is a duty we owe ourselves as well as the Haitians.

A Fake Exposed

THE moving picture may yet become an important weapon in the courtroom.

In an eastern city recently a worker had been collecting compensation from his former employer for 11 years, claiming that he had been totally disabled by injuries received while working in a shop. His ex-employer's lawyer suspected that he was shamming, but they could not prove it.

At last, however, they did it. A movie camera was smuggled into a hut near a city dump; and the photographer got a whole reel of film showing the supposedly totally disabled man working there all day long, lifting heavy boxes and swinging a shovel as lustily as any man could.

This film was taken to court, the judge took one look at it and ordered the disability compensation payments stopped.

Nightmare of Motorist After Strenuous Day at the Wheel!

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—There is something in the Bible about moths and beams in people's eyes and someone had better get Senator Kenneth McKellar off in a corner and read it to him before the senator makes any further attempt to demonstrate that Alibon is still perilous.

It may be, as McKellar says, that Great Britain's canceling of two new cruisers is so much misleading "balderdash" and "claptrap" despite its interpretation as a pleasant gesture on Premier Ramsay MacDonald's part during the naval arms limitation conference.

If so—and those be harsh words—we two countries would appear to be about even. For it may be recalled that President Hoover once undertook to make a cruiser gesture himself.

McKellar's Story
But first to hear Senator McKellar's story.

He read to the Senate a dispatch from London citing the announcement that construction of two of the newest British cruisers had been canceled. These were the cruisers Surrey and Northumberland, the dispatch said, on which MacDonald had suspended work shortly before his visit to the United States last year.

"I think that the American people thought work had begun on them and that Prime Minister MacDonald had directed that the work stop," McKellar said. "In other words the prime minister said work would be discontinued. When it was resumed we do not know. Now the British admiralty says work on these two ships is going to be discontinued again."

Work on these two ships has never actually been started. Yet Prime Minister MacDonald stopped the work on them when he came here last fall and now the British admiralty, it has said, has stopped work on these ships again, and at the same time, it appears that work has never been started on either of them.

"What are they doing to us?" McKellar demanded. "What do they take us for?"

Well, it would appear that the British first suspended construction and then canceled the two authorized cruisers altogether. Investigation reveals that there had been no keels laid, that preliminary steps in cruiser-making, which naval men commonly class under the head of "construction," were suspended before MacDonald came here and that now the two ships have been abandoned altogether.

Our Own Case

Now consider our own case: Doubtless many Americans still have the impression that we suspended construction on three cruisers pending the London conference. Mr. Hoover, on July 24, as a gesture of good will, said something which led to that belief. He said there were three cruisers in this year's fiscal year beginning July 1) construction program which had been undertaken in government navy yards. Detailed drawings for which were in the course of preparation. "The actual keels would, in the ordinary course, be laid down some time this fall. . . . we shall not lay down these keels until there has been an opportunity for full consideration of their effect upon the final agreement for parity which we expect to reach."

But the White House issued no orders for suspension. The Navy Department didn't change its plans. These three cruisers were to be undertaken in the year beginning July 1 and one learns at the Navy's Bureau of Construction and Repair that it always takes from eight to 12 months before keels are laid, making February the earliest time when keel-laying might begin. Neither has keel-laying begun on the two cruisers undertaken by private yards at the same time. The other preliminary work is under way. The navy is proceeding with its cruiser-building work "in the ordinary manner," explaining that it always takes time to get material assembled and to try out new improvements.

But thus far no one has arisen in the British Parliament and talked about us as Senator McKellar talked about England.

You see, it wasn't necessary to wait on some commission's report.—The Richmond News Leader.

University Girl Studies Forestry

Believes Study Will Play Important Part in Home Improvement.

FAYETTEVILLE, Feb. 13.—Forestry commends the interests of men, but Helen Morgan of Ouachita county, a senior in home economics of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, believes that forestry will play an important role in the home improvement program in Arkansas.

Miss Morgan, who is preparing herself for home demonstration agent work, is the first woman student to enroll in forestry classes at the University. In giving her reasons for this seemingly unusual selection, Miss Morgan says, "I know people will think it is quite odd for a woman student to make forestry a part of her study program, but in doing so I have what I believe, several good reasons."

"While I am not a native of Arkansas, I have spent most of my life in southern Arkansas where lumber has played a major part in industries, and where conservation of our timber wealth has been negligible. Too often have I seen valuable timber lands owned by farmers slashed and logged until only waste remains. My father and brother are owners of 700 acres of farm land, of which 450 acres are in timber. I have heard a great deal about good forestry practices in my own home and naturally I am interested in learning more about forest protection and what such a program can accomplish."

"But, aside from the utter disregard in Arkansas by land owners of this natural wealth, I am interested in forestry from the standpoint of making the farm woodland a year-around bank account. There is a general trend among rural people in our state toward improving living conditions, better homes, and their many improvements. This move has ill at the family home on North Hervey street for the past few days, is reported much improved this morning, which will be pleasing news to her many friends.

Mrs. M. H. Barlow returned yesterday from a very pleasant visit to her son, H. R. Barlow, at Spur, Texas, where she has spent the past three weeks.

Life is a gift to be used every day. Not to be smothered and hidden away. It isn't a thing to be stored in the chest. When you gather your keepsakes and treasure your best; It isn't a joy to be sipped now and then. And promptly put back in a dark place again. Life is a gift that the humblest may boast of. And one that the humblest may well boast of. Get out and live it each hour of the day. Wear it and use it as much as you may. Don't keep it in niches and corners and groves. You'll find that in service its beauty improves.—E. A. G.

'Atmospheric' Songs In Big Ulric Talkie

Old airs for new—airs that are old but not forgotten! That indeed is the musical line up in a number of sequences of Lenore Ulric's first talking picture "Frozen Justice," which is to be the feature attraction at the New Grand today and Friday. And in these days of pictures built around jazz band leaders and their sax-tootin' ilk, it's a sweeping, welcome change, we maintain.

More than twenty old time ballads of the "barroom variety" are caught by the microphones, including many pieces of twenty or more years ago which have been to a large degree incorporated among the folk-songs of the nation.

Shades of brown derbies, leg o' lamb sleeves, high bicycles and moustache cups! The colorful spirit of the Mauve Decade brought back again! The period is the end of the nineteenth century and includes the original hectic Yukon gold rush.

Total of $758,255 Col- lected on Cigarette Tax

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 13.—David A. Gates, state revenue commissioner, announced yesterday that collections from the cigar and cigarette tax from last July 1 to date total $758,255 and predicted that an additional $500,000 will be collected before the end of the current fiscal year, June 30.

Under the law the first $750,000 received from this tax goes to the common school fund, the second $750,000 to the common school equalization fund, and all in excess of $1,500,000 is divided equally between these funds.

Prior to passage of an amendment to the tobacco products tax act by the 1920 legislature, authorizing enforcement of more efficient methods of collecting the tax, the equalization fund had received only a few thousand dollars annually from the tax.

Commissioner Gates said he believes the state now is receiving as near 100 per cent of the tax due as it is possible to collect and that collection to be allotted to the equalization fund from now until June 30 will exceed $500,000.

Razorbacks Meet S. M. U. This Week

Games Will Be Played At Fayetteville Friday and Saturday.

FAYETTEVILLE, Feb. 13.—The regular season of the basketball season is now in its "crucial" series after another week of the University of Arkansas Razorbacks who face Southern Methodist University, conquerors of Texas last Friday, and Saturday night and then wind up the season next week with four games in five days against foreign soil.

Southern Methodist's unexpected victory over the Longhorns has put the Razorbacks considerably "hot" and they are pepping up, expecting for the two beatings which Arkansas gave the Oklahoma Aggies at Stillwater last week proved that the Razorback outfit is traveling at top speed.

But just the same the set-back which Arkansas suffered at the hands of S. M. U. relieved the pressure on the four-time champions. Right now Coach Bassett and his cardinal crew are all alone on the top rung of the conference ladder and will remain there over the week end unless the Mustangs are able to beat the Razorbacks "thing that hasn't happened since 1924."

In the past six years Arkansas and Southern Methodist have met twelve times on the basketball court and with the exception of the first game which the Mustangs won 17-11 Arkansas has won all of them.

Coach Bassett is guarding against over-confidence in the Razorback camp. And he has a very good talking point in S. M. U.'s victory over Texas.

"This man Williams at forward and Brooks at center will give our defense plenty to worry about," said Bassett. "And it is a safe bet that Reynolds and Skeeters, S. M. U.'s guards will be hard to get away from if they play the same kind of a game here that they played against Texas."

The games this week end will mark the last home appearance of the Arkansas quintet. This fact coupled with the bearing the game will have on the local championship aspirations and the fact that Southern Methodist is always a good drawing card here indicates a sell-out for the two games.

The Arkansas squad came through the semester examinations in good shape and the regular starting lineup will face the invaders. Pickren, who recovered his shooting eye against Oklahoma A. & M. last week, will pair off with Captain Schoonover at the forward position.

Two More Victories BY TANLAC OVER "RHEUMATISM" AND STOMACH AILMENTS

Only Medicine That Does What It Claims
says Nicholas J. Jansen

You folks who have tried medicine after medicine without benefit, take heart. Read this letter of Mr. N. J. Jansen and then let your conscience be your guide.
"Before starting Tanlac," said Mr. Jansen, "I was very run-down and suffered terribly from pains in every bone in my body. My back hurt until I felt it was pulling in two. My appetite was very poor and gas would form on my stomach and I could sleep until I thought I would burst. I couldn't sleep and didn't care whether I worked or not. I tried medicine after medicine and none gave me relief until I started taking Tanlac and this is the only medicine that does what it claims. Now I feel fine in every way. I'm no longer run-down, my appetite is good, I sleep good and get up in the morning feeling like a new person."

Neuritis and Stomach Gas Ended For This Lady

You may think because you have been suffering so long and terribly that nothing will help you now. But you cannot read this letter of Mrs. Margaret Wallace without believing that there is hope for you, too, in Tanlac. "All the good things I could say about Tanlac would not express my true sentiments. For 13 years I suffered stomach troubles worse than anybody I seem to me. Gases filled and smothered me causing a pain around the heart and the pain would extend to my back and shoulders and then turn into neuritis. I suffered awfully. Whatever I ate resulted in heartburn. Tanlac is the only medicine that could cope with such severe troubles as mine. It relieved me fully, my stomach is in best condition in 13 years, no longer causing acid, gases and heartburn."

HOOKS AND SLIDES by William Braucher

Kind Words for Scott

EVER since they arranged that affair between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott at Palm Beach, we have been scanning the public prints with the eye of an eagle, seeking favorable omen on Mr. Scott. Our search was vain until this morning when a copy of the London Sunday News came to hand. We are now able to present one story in which Philip is not referred to as "Phainting Phil," or the "Swooning Swan."

The piece is by Castor, the News' boxing writer, and here it is:

"Jimmy Johnston, the American manager of Phil Scott, has earned his bit of corn. He has fought relentlessly to secure recognition for Scott as the logical opponent for Jack Sharkey, and has won. It is a signal triumph. Because nearly every American boxing critic has been doing his best, or his worst, to belittle our champion in the eyes of the American sporting public. Sharkey and Scott meet at Miami, Fla., Feb. 27, and we are told that the winner will oppose Max Schmeling for the world's title."

"I quite realize that Scott has been unfortunate in winning several fights through his rival hitting him low, but this was not his fault. He would prefer a clear-cut victory; either on points or by the knockout route."

"Scott says that he is confident of beating Sharkey. He can hardly say more or less. Sharkey will also express himself in similar terms."

Our only comment will be: Castor says that Scott would prefer a clear-cut victory; either on points or by the knockout route. We too, Castor!

They have not forgiven Scott for beating Otto von Forst on a foul. They unanimously agree that the blow was a low one, but urge that the punch did not hurt and that Scott should have fought on.

"This is an illogical argument. The rules are explicit. Any fighter transgressing must pay the penalty."

Miami Becomes Fistic Capital; Bouts May Draw $400,000 Gate

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(P)—Complaints may sometime come into headquarters over the call of fighting loosed upon the sun-drenched populace of Miami, February 27, but there never was and probably there never will be any question that the setting is the most pleasant and complete in prize fight history.

Somehow or other the natives neglect to work themselves into frenzies over the prospect or lack of prospect of ferocious mugging. For the visitors the big, glistening arena in the heart of Miami is the "place to be" on the night of the fights. For the natives, home town pride in the venture, the sudden appearance of the "big time" at one of fistiana's way stations, and the color and glamor of it all, is sufficient to draw the multitudes through the turnstiles.

When Willie Stribling, a son of the South, made his bid for heavyweight fame against Jack Sharkey in the first of five annual heavyweight fistias last winter, the holiday spirit that prevailed the whole scene was the thing. The fight itself mattered little. There was little prospect of a ferocious struggle and no one was disappointed. When it was all over the general exclamation was:

"Well, it sure was a great fight right up to the first round."

The setting of sun, ocean, golf and alai, fishing and the general entertainments of the near-tropics in the winter time will be there in force again to provide four-fifths of the promotion for Sharkey's second appearance in the Florida playground, this time against Fireman Phil Scott, the lenning tower of London. Unlike the scrambling of third rate mastiffs in the preliminaries of last year's show, the supporting card this year brings together Johnny Risko and Vittorio Campolo in the semi-final and Tommy Loughran and Pierre Charles in another ten.

The big octagon stadium will be the place for society the night to February 27 and the place for the rest of the folks to see them. Thus another $400,000 gate is well within prospect.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation. While the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Menu For the Family

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

FINNAN HADDIE is ordinary haddock dried and cured. In the fishing village of Pindhorn, near Aberdeen, Scotland, haddock was especially well cured and the town gained a wide reputation for its dried fish. By contraction, Pindhorn has become Finnan and any smoked and salted haddock is known as finnan haddie.

Our finnan haddie is a native of this country, but the process of curing is much the same as that used in Pindhorn.

Many a delicious breakfast, luncheon or dinner dish can be concocted from finnan haddie. It is one of the most savory of the dried fishes and should be used more freely than it is. Less freshening is needed than in most varieties of salted fish. This makes it convenient and easy to use.

Finnan haddie fritters are unusual and delicious for luncheon. Served with a hot tartar sauce, they are an addition to the family or company meal.

Finnan Haddie Fritters—One to 2 cups flaked fish, 1-2 cups flour, 5 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 2-3 cup milk, 1 egg.

Choose a fish that is thick and short. Soak in warm water for 20 minutes. Drain and put on the stove in fresh water to cover. Bring slowly to the boiling point and remove at once from fire. Drain and remove skin and bones. Separate flesh into large flakes. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and pepper. Slowly add milk and egg, beating batter to keep it smooth. Add fish and onion and stir just enough to mix well. Drop from tip of spoon into deep, hot fat and fry until a golden brown on all sides. Drain and serve hot. The fat should be hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread in 40 seconds or 350 degrees F. on a fat thermometer.

Baked Finnan Haddie—Baked finnan haddie is simple and is relished for breakfast when served with corn bread or muffins. Wash fish and let stand in cold water to cover for an hour. Keep skin side up. Drain and wipe dry. Sprinkle with minced onion, dredge with flour and dot with bits of butter. Sprinkle lightly with paprika and pour over milk to cover fish. Bake 30 minutes in a hot oven.

A famous old chef makes pancakes this way

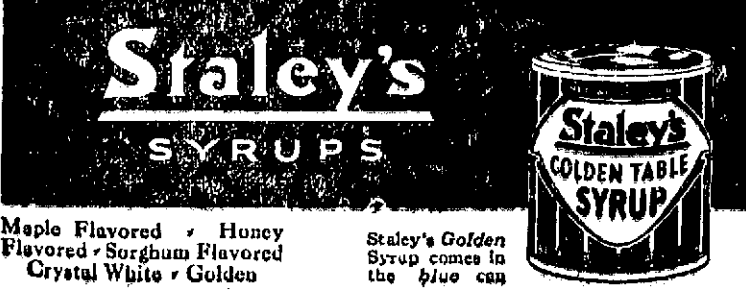

2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Staley's Golden Syrup
2 eggs
1 tablespoon shortening
1 1/2 cups milk

Mix dry ingredients together in a bowl. Add milk, syrup, shortening and beaten eggs, stirring until thoroughly mixed. Bake on hot griddle, turning only once.

Next Sunday evening have cakes with this delicious syrup

FOLKS just naturally take to pancakes and Staley's Golden Syrup. Have them on Sunday evenings when the family gets together. They'll all delight in the delicious flavor of this syrup. It has a rich, tempting taste that is very appealing. And besides, it is so inexpensive. Ask for Staley's Golden Syrup at your grocer's today. ## BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON, New York Times, is a girl who is a knockout. She is a knockout in which she is employed. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 15, in Paris and a son, JUNIOR, 10, at school. When Tony returns she denounces Judith as a scoundrel.

TONY is a scoundrel, a scoundrel in a situation with MICKEY MORTIMER, wealthy and married. When Junior comes home for the Christmas holidays he also treats Judith coldly.

CRAG, whom Knight has helped through college, takes a position with the publishing house. He has been in love with Tony for a long while. Tony tries to convince her father that Andy and Judith are carrying on an affair. Knight decides this but Tony tricks the pair into a compromising situation.

Knight becomes seriously ill with pneumonia. After a long period of danger during which Junior is summoned home, Knight begins to recover. Before the boy returns to school he admits to Judith he has misjudged her. Knight's recuperation is slow and Judith is resentful because he seems to prefer Tony's company to hers. A letter for Judith comes to the house and Tony takes it. Later both drive into the city. Knight gets out of the car but follows in a taxi cab to see where Judith goes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVII

THE car ahead swerved.

Tony braced herself, clutching at the door of the taxi to keep from slipping as the cab veered crazily after.

"Not—so fast!" she gasped, leaning forward with her face close to the half-open glass partition between driver and passenger. "I don't want to get near!"

"Gotta keep moving in this traffic!" the chauffeur retorted faintly. "Can't stand still!"

Suddenly, with an almost instantaneous jolt, both cars sprang forward.

They were on Sixth avenue now, heading southward. Past Forty-fifth street, Forty-fourth street, Forty-third. A turn into the maestro of Times Square.

"Stop here! Draw up to the curb!" Tony issued her commands sharply.

The taxi driver gave her a glance over his shoulder.

"Can't do it, lady."

Miraculously the traffic lights turned at that instant. Tony's hand had gone to her throat. She had seen her father's car move close to the sidewalk, pause long enough for Judith to step out, then pull off and disappear.

Sunk back against the leather upholstery Tony watched her stepmother. Judith seemed to waver uncertainly in the tides of traffic. Then she stepped forward, signaling a cab.

"That's the woman I want to follow. The one in black—see?" Tony told the driver.

"Yeah! I getcha all right."

NOW they were off again. Difficulties only whetted Tony Knight's keenness for the chase. In the juggling, dipping whirl of vehicles they might lose track of Judith at any moment. There were dozens of other cabs just like hers. But Tony was warming to the hunt.

The thick-jawed, short-spoken taxi driver manipulated his cab recklessly. He edged in between trucks and spurted at the exact instant to avoid delays. He plunged forward and stopped short. Risks were the day's routine to him. They were even less than that to his passenger.

She was young, he had noted, pretty and expensively dressed. She was very much in earnest. The job looked like Opportunity knocking in the form of a sizeable tip.

They reached West Twelfth street. Now the going was easier. They were away from the uptown hordes. Streets were less congested (though still well filled) and the second cab followed more slowly. It kept a good half block behind its leader.

"There's the place!" Tony whispered to herself.

The first taxi had stopped before a dark brick building. Judith emerged, paid her fare and walked up the steps of the house.

"Want me to stop here?" the chauffeur inquired of Tony.

"Yes."

The brakes of the cab ground to a stop. The girl inside did not step out. With her nose pressed flatly against the glass pane she waited, watching Judith.

"This is the place," Tony was saying to herself. "I'll bet he lives here. Oh—wouldn't I give anything to see him, though! What a little, lying sneak she's been!"

The door before which Judith had been waiting opened. Now she was talking, though the person to whom she spoke remained hidden. The door closed and Judith turned about.

A guilty blush mounted in Tony Knight's cheeks. Judith had glanced directly toward the taxi cab but of course she could not dream who was inside! An ordinary, orange-lit cab was a common enough sight on any street. What should not excite suspicion. Just the same Tony felt relieved when the other girl calmly shifted her gaze across the street.

"What's she waiting for?" the imps in Tony's consciousness demanded.

"Ah—for what?" other imps answered back, in ghoulish glee.

The question was more definitely answered immediately. From out the shadows of the doorway a figure stepped. Tony Knight was so excited a little gap escaped her lips!

The man was slim, built with square shoulders but rather sparsely lined. He looked youthful. He was pulling a cap down over his head and he wore a dark top-coat.

Tony saw Judith step back, saw her suddenly clutch at both of the man's hands and raise her head. Swiftly Judith's lips met the stranger's.

Whatever Judith Knight was saying to the man was earnest and intent. The girl who watched, crouched in her hiding place, could not make out the man's expression. He had heart pumping violently, Tony Knight judged.

They were coming down the steps now together. Should they turn, Tony asked herself, would she dare?

They had turned. They were coming toward the orange-lit taxi cab.

TONY KNIGHT jerked at her hat, lowering its brim over her eyes. Fascinated, entirely forgetful of danger, she waited.

Judith was talking, her face toward the man. He was rather good looking, Tony decided. She could not make out his features distinctly but he carried himself well. He was attentive as Judith talked.

Now they were almost beside her!

The couple passed the taxi cab. In those few seconds Tony Knight took in the appearance of Judith's companion. She assured herself she could identify him anywhere.

Dark eyes. Straight nose. Broad mouth and above it a small, dark mustache. Was he 25 years old? Certainly not older. He was well dressed, almost dapper. And his eyes not for one instant left Judith's face.

Tony in her absorption with the man forgot to look at Judith.

They had passed without even a glance at the cab.

"Turn around!" Tony told her driver excitedly. "Drive back up the street."

Turning was not so simple. By the time the taxi cab had whirled about and headed back whence it had come the couple had turned a corner. And when Tony's cab reached that corner and prepared to follow the pair were out of sight.

The girl gave instructions to drive slowly up the street. It was no use. She looked to left and to right but her quarry had disappeared.

Tony Knight's crimson lips pouted.

"Pennsylvania Station," she told the driver shortly.

Arriving at the station, she left the cab, paid a $5 taxi bill and added a generous tip. Then she bought a ticket and took the Interurban train home.

"The little sneak!" Tony Knight whispered under her breath. "Oh, the sneaking little cheat!"

Tony was nearly bursting with the excitement of her discovery. She knew a little now. She would find out more and piece the whole together.

Instinct cautioned the girl quite suddenly to turn about and scan her neighbors. No, there was no one who knew her in the car.

The torn and twisted bit of paper still lay in her hand. Tony Knight glanced at the envelope, then began to smooth and straighten it out. She drew forth the crumpled pages.

"DEAR JUDY," the letter began. "Sorry to be late in answering your note. There's no word from the Chief though I've been expecting it daily. No news in this case, I guess, is good news."

"I know what you're up against—at or at any rate I know enough to wish I could help. Can't you get over soon? It's been a long while. Long, that is, for me!"

"There's more I want to tell you but it will have to wait for a private visit. How about a little dinner next week? You set the night. There's a plan in my head, dear, that may mean a lot for both of us. Maybe you can guess part of it."

"If there's anything from the Chief within the next day or two I'll drop it in the mail. This is one of the lonesome nights. Why aren't you here? No use starting that all over again, I suppose. Remember I'm counting on you for next week! Always—Dan."

The signature had been added with a conspicuous flourish. Tony studied this signature carefully.

Now she had seen Dan (of course it must have been he) and the whole letter had acquired added interest. Dan was good-looking and young and in love with Judith. Dan and Judith evidently had secrets. They had been meeting together and evidently plotted further meetings. Both received messages from someone known as the "Chief."

Why—it was an outrageous intrigue!

There was more to this mystery than was apparent. Yes, certainly, Tony meant to know it all.

She arrived at the house before Judith did, rushed to her room and 20 minutes later joined Arthur Knight in the living room. It was a cool evening even though it was April. Low flames flickered on the hearth and gave the room a cheering warmth.

Tony pulled a low footstool in front of her father's chair, perched on it and rested her head against his knees.

"Daddy," she said in a wheedling voice, "sometimes I get so lonesome for you!"

"Why, Tony, how could you be lonesome?"

"But there's such a little bit of time we have together—I mean really together, without anyone else, daddy. I've been wondering if you and I couldn't take a trip somewhere—"

"Trips are out of the question, Tony. Couldn't think of it. Your dad's got to get back on the job!"

"But, father!"

"It was a pretty and appealing picture the girl made. Arthur Knight smiled down at her, patted her dark curls—then looked up abruptly.

Judith Knight had entered the house and stood in the hallway.

"Well, Judith," said her husband rather stiffly, "you're late!"

"I know. And I'm so sorry!" "Trouble with the car?"

"No—oh, no, it wasn't anything like that. I—my watch stopped. I thought it was an hour earlier. Is dinner waiting?"

"The bouillon was hot and inviting. The rest of the dinner was up to Cora's high standard. Judith tasted the food with relish because she was hungry.

Gradually she became aware that something was wrong. Something was wrong with herself or with Tony or Arthur. What had happened? On the surface everything was just as it had been but the room's atmosphere was quickened. A storm lay ahead.

It was not to come that night, however. The disaster broke next day. (To Be Continued)

Fraternal Order Started on Wood Pile Celebrates

SEATTLE, Feb. 13.—Thirty-one years ago today a small group of men interested in the theatre sat on a lumber pile in a ship-yard and organized a lodge that was to become the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

The organization was just a joke, explained Frank Dowd, who has been secretary of the mothererie, Seattle No. 1, for 27 years.

The first name of the order was the Brotherhood of Good Things and all the dues went for refreshments. The founders were the late John Cort, John W. and Thomas J. Considine, H. L. Leavitt, Arthur G. Williams and Mose Goldsmith. All were theatrical managers and Cort and Considine won national prominence in their work.

From the lumber pile the lodge headquarters was moved to a small hall. A stuffed eagle was on the walls so the name of the organization was changed.

Rapidly the organization grew, taking as members many of the theatrical

Goitre Not a Disease

Milwaukee, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. F12, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. ## World's Shipbuilding Industry Now Faces Revolutionary Change

The launching of this unpretentious looking barge, at the Groton, Connecticut, works of the Electric Boat Company, is expected to revolutionize the shipbuilding industry of the entire world. Built without rivets, she was welded into what is virtually a "one-piece" vessel.

A SIMPLE flat-bottomed barge, towed into New York harbor recently by an equally unassuming tugboat, is threatening to revolutionize the entire shipbuilding industry of the world. Its successful launching has created such a sensation that experts from the United States navy, marine architects, and representatives from every large shipbuilding organization on the eastern seaboard recently gathered at Schenectady to hear the story first hand from its designers and builders.

The barge, named the "Steelweld," was designed by Eric H. Ewertz, a consulting engineer of New York, and was built at the Groton, Connecticut, works of the Electric Boat Company.

The "Steelweld" is the first vessel ever built with the so-called Ewertz welding system named after its inventor. The use of rivets is eliminated; she is virtually a "one-piece" vessel. And like Fulton's "Claremont," the "Merrimac" and "Monitor," the "Savannah" and the other great "firsts" of marine annals, the little barge "Steelweld" is destined to take her place in international maritime history.

The welding process results in a saving of twenty per cent in total cost of shipbuilding, and twenty-five per cent in weight and the time required for construction. Maintenance cost is likewise reduced by almost a fourth. Leakage of liquid cargo around corroded or "sprung" rivets will also be obviated. Stressing the importance of this, shipbuilders point out that three per cent of every liquid shipment such as oil is lost in transit through such leakage.

At the meeting of naval experts and shipbuilders at Schenectady, it was almost unanimously agreed that as a result of the successful launching of the "Steelweld," the industry is facing a revolutionary change as great in its way as the departure from sail to steam, or from wood to steel construction.

'Personal Psychology' Ends Student Illusions

BOULDER, Colo., Feb. 13.—(A)—That they may see themselves as others see them, 14 students at the University of Colorado have enrolled in a "personal psychology" class.

Their aim is acute analysis of one another, anonymously, for grading as to personality. Twenty-nine characteristics are considered, including neatness, laziness, bluffing, good posture, health, friendliness, alertness, conceit, talkativeness, honesty, humor and sincerity.

"This system teaches the students to face facts and destroy harmful illusions," says Professor Thomas H. Howell. "The goal of any real individual is to know the truth about himself, regardless."

How FORD METHODS CUT COST OF DISTRIBUTION

Lower profits in selling save you at least $50 to $75 in addition to the many savings in manufacturing

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago the Ford Motor Company was formed to provide reliable, economical transportation for all the people. That original purpose has never changed. The constant effort in every activity is to find ways to give you greater and greater value without extra cost—frequently at lowered cost. This applies to distribution and similar important factors, as well as manufacture.

For the Ford Motor Company believes that its full duty is not only to make a good automobile at the lowest possible price, but to see that there is no waste, extravagance, or undue profit in any transaction from the time the car leaves the factory until it is delivered to your home. It is obvious that hard-won savings in production will be of little value if they are sacrificed later through excessive selling costs.

EVERY purchaser of a motor car has the right to know how much of the money he pays is for the car itself and how much is taken up by dealer charges. If these charges are too high, one of two things must happen. Either the price of the car must be raised or the quality lowered. There is no other way. The money must come from somewhere.

In the case of the Ford, the low charges for distribution, selling, financing and accessories mean a direct saving of at least $50 to $75 to every purchaser in addition to the still greater savings made possible by economies in manufacturing. Ford charges are not marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

The profit margin on the Ford car has always been fair to both the dealer and the public. Within the past three months, it has been possible to effect still further economies. Today, the discount or commission of the Ford dealer is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

THE business of the Ford dealer is good because he makes a small profit on a large number of sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales. He knows, too, that the extra dollar-for-dollar value of the car makes it easier to sell and more certain to give satisfactory service after purchase.

Consider also that the Ford car is delivered to the purchaser equipped with a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, an extra steel-spoke wheel, and bright, enduring Rustless Steel for many exterior metal parts, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes.

If for any reason you wish to buy certain small accessories, you will find that these, too, are sold at the usual Ford low prices. Replacement parts are also available at low prices through Ford dealers in every section of the country.

THESE are important points to remember in considering the purchase of a motor car. They show why it is possible to put so much extra quality into the new Ford and still maintain the low price. They are also the reasons why more than 35% of all cars sold today are Model A Fords.
